ROUND THE WORLD FLYERS REACH HANOI SAFELY HOPE FADES FOR OLD GLORY

DETROIT ACES LONG OVERDUE THOUGHT LOST

Destination Of Next Hop
Unknown As Flyers
Leave Hanoi

MANILA, Sept. 9.—The Pride of Detroit, carrying Edward Schlee and W. S. Brock on a round-the-world flight arrived at Hanoi, French Indo-China safely according to word received here today. The dispatch also said that the flyers left that city but did not give a destination.

The Pride of Detroit hopped off from Rangoon, British India, Thursday morning and much was felt for their safety when they did not reach Bangkok, Siam which they stated would be their destination.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—No word has been received from the round-the-world plane, Spirit of Detroit, and the two flying globe-trotters, Edward S. Schlee, and W. S. Brock since they hopped off from Rangoon, British India, Thursday morning.

HEADED FOR BANGKOK
They were headed for Bangkok, Siam, 325 miles away and should have made it in four hours. They declared however that in the event of bad weather making landing at Bangkok difficult they would proceed to Hanoi, French-Indo-China, a distance of 700 miles from Rangoon.

OVERDUE AT BOTH CITIES
They are now long overdue at both cities and as they were forced to cross the almost impenetrable jungles of Indo-China and Burma on this hope, fears for the (Continued on Page 5.)

Steel Company, Sheriff Veale, Three Others Named In Case

Antioch Man Charges His Arrest, Imprisonment
Were Malicious

Charging false arrest and imprisonment, Otto C. Avery of Antioch, former employee of the Columbia Steel Company yesterday filed suit in Martinez against the steel firm, Sheriff R. R. Veale, Deputy Sheriff J. M. Joseph, Y. L. Harvill, deputy sheriff and steel company employee, and Capetara Florida, steel worker, seeking damages of $10,000 for his detention at the county jail last October for alleged threats against the life of Herrida.

"ARREST WITHOUT WARRANT"
Avery charges that he was arrested at his Antioch home without a warrant by Joseph and Harvill, and claims his detention was at the request of the steel company.

The arrest came during a strike of one hundred employees of the steel firm, Avery being numbered among the strikers.

"HELD 15 HOURS"
The suit claims that Avery was held in the county jail for fifteen hours, that his wife was denied permission to see him and that his request to be taken before a magistrate to have bail fixed went unheeded. Complaint against him and warrant for his arrest were not filed. Avery claims, until after his detention. He was subsequently released on being taken into court at Pittsburg.

DAMAGES ON 2 CHARGES
Herrida alleged in his complaint that Avery and Louis Kelley and John Ruiz, also strikers, visited his home at Antioch, threatened his life and ordered him out of town because he had refused to strike.

Publication of stories of his arrest, Avery declares damaged his reputation, for which he asks $5000. An additional $5000 is sought on the charge his arrest and imprisonment were malicious.

Davis Death Is Held Suicidal

A verdict of suicidal death due to a gunshot wound was returned by a coroner's jury at the inquest over the body of Arthur T. Davis in Martinez yesterday. Coroner Aubrey Wilson conducted the inquest.

Testimony at the inquest showed that the poison taken by Davis prior to shooting himself had not had time to take effect before the bullet was fired. Despondence over ill health is given as the reason Davis committed suicide. He took a quantity of poison and informed his wife, Mrs. Bertha H. Davis, who attempted to telephone for a physician. He then shot himself. Funeral services were held in Martinez yesterday afternoon at the Brunswick and Connolly mortuary with Knights of Pythias and Pythian Sisters conducting the services. Cremation followed in Oakland and the ashes will be scattered to the winds in accordance with Davis' last wishes.

Plummer and his wife were driving north on Liberty when his car collided with that of Hector MacKinnon, son of Justice of the Peace A. H. MacKinnon, of El Cerrito. Plummer was taken to the Abbott Emergency hospital where it was found that his left cheek and nose were lacerated and that he was suffering from shock. ## RICHMOND BANK BANDIT SAID TO ADMIT MURDER

Slaying Of Detective In St. Louis Is Traced
To McFarlin

James Edgar McFarlin, 23, Richmond bank robber who made a sensational break for liberty from San Quentin last May, may be returned to St. Louis in connection with the slaying there of Detective Sergeant E. J. Lally last New Year's day.

Detective G. Adams of the St. Louis police recently interviewed McFarlin at San Quentin. Inspector Frank Waterbury of the Berkeley police department and Captain Revere Smith, secretary to Warden J. B. Holohun, were present.

Chief August Vollmer of Berkeley said that Detective Adams told him, following the interview at San Quentin, that McFarlin confessed complicity in the Lally murder.

Chief Vollmer quoted Adams as saying: "McFarlin told me he had been in St. Louis January 1. He said he was driving around in a stolen automobile, was drinking and picked up four men, none of whom was known to him. One of the men in the car told McFarlin to drive over to the curb."

McFarlin said he drove over to the curb and the man who had spoken out, walked up to Lally and after cursing him, shot the officer. The murderer then got back into the car, McFarlin said, and as they drove away Lally fired several shots at them."

Directly contradicting Detective Adams are Captain Smith and Inspector Waterbury.

Both Smith and Waterbury asserted that McFarlin did not make a confession.

McFarlin is serving from five years to life in San Quentin. He was arrested in Denver January 18, 1927, on a charge of participating with Hix Anderson, 22, in the sensational daylight hold-up of the Mechanics' Bank at Richmond, November 22, 1926, and looting the institution of $16,000.

Arrest of Anderson, as he was attempting to make his get-away the evening of the robbery by Under Sheriff W. M. Veale and Chief (Continued on Page Eight)

Richmond Legion Post Nominates New Officers

Officers for the new year were nominated last night by the Richmond Post of the American Legion, the nominees to be elected at the next meeting, September 22. A. H. Myers, a member of the local post, will sail Saturday from New York on the S. S. DeGrasse for Paris, where he will represent the Richmond branch of the American Legion at the national convention there. He carries with him sod from graves of veterans buried in Sunset View cemetery. The sod will be used in memorial services at the American cemeteries in France. Myers will probably return about the first of November.

LOCAL GROWTH TOLD MARTINEZ

MARTINEZ, Sept. 8.—Visioning rapid industrial development for Martinez with reclamation of waterfront acreage, now in progress, Fred Parr of Parr Terminal company, who was largely instrumental in successful conclusion of negotiations for establishment of a Ford Company, factory at Richmond last night detailed to one hundred Martinez residents the development of Richmond harbor and the steps taken to secure the Ford plant.

Parr was one of four speakers at a joint dinner meeting at Travelers Hotel of the Chamber of Commerce and Martinez Kiwanis Club.

E. H. Shibley, superintendent of McNear Company interests, engaged with the municipality in reclamation here, spoke on local history and development; E. B. Bull, of Richmond, president of the Contra Costa Realtors' Board touched on Richmond's industrial program and Burdick Moody of Los Angeles, secretary of the Boulder Dam Association, related the history of the Boulder Dam situation and the necessity for federal action in construction of a Colorado river water barrier.

Actual construction of the Ford plant, a $5,000,000 factory employing 1500 men, will be started by the spring of 1929, Parr announced.

Parr prophesied that the rapid industrial development of the entire bay area could only predict success for the development of the harbor here.

"I now know of several industrial concerns that are seeking harbor front locations," Parr declared. "When your 100 acres here is developed I am sure that it will be the location of thriving industries."

Bull discussed methods by which Richmond successfully conducted campaigns for harbor bond issues and Shibley gave an intimate discussion of Martinez' development and future.

Disposal Of "Love Children" Proves Puzzle To Authorities

Disposal of four children, born out of wedlock in a triangle of man and wife and the latter's sister, present a difficult problem for solution to Contra Costa and Alameda county authorities with the likelihood that it will be finally shifted to Alameda county for determination inasmuch as the mother of the children resides there.

The unusual situation was presented in court yesterday when Probation Officer T. A. Boyer applied to Superior Judge H. V. Alvarado to make the children, all under six years of age, wards of the court so that provisions for their maintenance could be made.

The hearing developed that the wife, sister of the children's mother, is ready to assume responsibility for their care but the complexities of the situation are causing authorities to move cautiously before making disposition of the children.

The women involved in the case are Mrs. Elizabeth Correa of El Cerrito and her sister, Mrs. Julia Silva, 181 Eleventh street, Oakland. The man is Mrs. Correa's husband, Manuel.

Till Storms Clear
From Atlantic

By FARE L. SHAUB
(Other all-Service Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—When darkness rolled over the horizon, just covered waters of the Atlantic ocean again tonight brought an end to another day of vain searching for two big men-of-war that had hopped off so buoyantly from America for Europe.

SECOND DAY OF HUNT
This was the second day of hunting for some trace of Old Glory and the three daring men who left it in its confidence on Tuesday from Orchard Beach, Me., on their way to Rome.

POLISHING OFF THE WICKED KING

The prodigious campaign waged by Mayor Thompson of Chicago against that menacing tyrant, the King of England, now takes the form of effort to oust the Chicago superintendent of schools, who is accused of so correcting the school history textbooks as to make it plain that the Americans did not actually win such contests as the Battle of Bladensburg. In his hectic campaign for the mayoralty, Mr. Thompson denounced the superintendent as a "stool pigeon for the King of England" and promised his removal.

It seems almost incredible that any large American city should elect as its chief magistrate a man of Mr. Thompson's thunderous blatancy, patent ignorance and passion for hokum. One gets a somewhat painful idea of the collective intelligence of Chicago when one perceives the ballot box effectiveness of this King of England stuff. Chicago cannot really feel itself menaced by the British empire yet it does whoop it tumultuously for "Big Bill"—he was pro-German during the war—every time he starts his vocal battling against the House of Windsor. With its gunmen, its vice districts, its police scandals and the rest, Chicago refuses to be concerned for the cleaning up of its own messes but selects its city head for his ability to make faces at a foreign country four thousand miles away.

It is funny enough for people residing in other and less colorful communities. But it isn't so funny when you consider the school end of it. Here is one of the greatest American cities making its educational system an instrument of cheap politics and cheap politicians. You have only to observe the city government of Chicago to understand why it is that gangsters flourish there as naturally as the sparks fly upward.

A directory shows several hairpin manufacturers are still in business and the reason suggested is that while there is less long hair to manage there are more padlocks to open.—Detroit News.

As a matter of fact, what with radio, aviation, Lindbergh, Mr. Coolidge's worm bait, Tex Rickard and the rest it must be really difficult to be a Harper's nowadays.

Former Senator Robert L. Owen is sure that the Germans in 1914-1918 were fighting a defensive war and they always wanted peace. But they never suggested peace until they had been whipped.

In Boston they arrested Edna St. Vincent Millay for picketing, but did nothing whatever about her poetry.

Once there was a week-end in which it did not rain. But no picnic crowd believes this story.

How To Earn Money!

All of my life I have been accustomed to having the very best. Now that I am in need I am ashamed to go out and look for work in the town where I am now living. I can sing and play a little and am thinking of coming to New York and going on the stage. I am 18.

GWENDOLYN

Put your pride and look for work in your own home town. You will be far more successful and far better off than you will be in a strange city looking for a job. New York is already full to overflowing with girls who can sing a little and play a little and are looking for a career on the stage. Unless you are exceptionally gifted as an entertainer I would advise you to take up stenography or some other line of work and use your pretty talent in the church choir at home. You may not be pleased with this advice now but if you follow it you'll be thanking Sara Spence before many months have passed.

I took your advice about putting an ad in your paper for a partner and found a very fine young lady. We have gotten our little shop in excellent shape and hope to do a very good business. She is a very agreeable person, and knows how to take care of a shop like ours. Thank you very much. JULIA T.

I know an ad of that kind would bring results. I am pleased to know that you are satisfied.

I would like to make children's dresses at home. How can I get such work?

Why not rent a window to display your work? Or, better still, if you live on the ground floor you can use your own window to display a few attractive dresses.

I want to get into the movies. What is the first step to take in order to find such work?

These pictures screened by a motion picture photographer and take it to a producer to let him see how you film. This is not as expensive as other ways.

Mrs. Sarah Spence will answer all questions on "How to Earn Money at Home." Address her care of this paper.

What Your FACE TELLS

©c. 1927- by Betty Morrison PSYD.

THE TROUBLE IN THAT TROUBLED LAUGH

"Pack up your troubles in your old kit bag and smile, smile, smile." It would be foolish for some one to ask: "Do you believe in laughter?" Of course you do in principle. You believe in it as you do in breathing. Why not, then, pledge yourself to increase your laughter and thus increase the laughter of the world?

If you want to stay young, if you want to stay well, if you want to be beautiful, if you want to travel in the highway of happiness, you must smile. Not only occasionally but most of the time. How we do envy the man who can clear every situation with a good laugh. There is a language of laughter, however, and not all laughter means mirth, joy, happiness.

A smile often speaks much where words are impossible. Often we are transported to another world by smiling or by getting a sympathetic smile from another. Think of all that happens when one honestly smiles. Besides, all that comes to brighten and tone the mental states there is, science tells us, a great physical benefit when we laugh. Laughter changes the chemicals of the body. When we laugh the heart action quickens and our respiratory rates increase. We speed up the circulation thus purifying the blood and helping to eliminate body wastes.

We expand our lungs, exercise the abdominal muscles and produce untold benefit on the too tense nervous system. Smiles tell so much when we understand their meaning. This face, positive individual hides a world of grief behind his smile. Behind it is more sorrow than his friends would ever guess. The sensitivity of his nature has made life's grief poignant. His eye shows the thinker, the man intellectually endowed. Note the lifted eyebrows, the sadness of the eyes, so unlike the smiling mouth. Here is the sympathizer, the man whose heart who thinks and feels deeply, for he is not burdening but whom the world can not go on the kind that carries the world on his shoulder—by smiling. His tender heartedness makes him very responsive. If he could have his way there would be nobody hungry, nobody cold. Every aching head would have a hand upon it. His reward comes in discovering this: that the cheerful man is the useful man. It is profitable in every way to learn to smile.

YOUR MARRIAGE PROBLEMS

J. G. married a girl 20 years his junior and in trying to make up to her for her lost girlhood he has been a bit too indulgent. Through bitter experience his young wife has learned a sad lesson that she will not soon forget. She is thoroughly repentant; J. G. is willing to forgive—but hesitates about taking her back.

Says the MAN

Dear Patricia Lee:— I made the mistake of marrying a girl 20 years my junior. She was only 17, and I loved her so much I did not realize I was doing her an injustice. When I came to my senses I began to try to make amends. I wanted to make up for the good times I had caused her to miss. I had had my good times, so I surrounded her by young company, allowed her every liberty and sacrificed everything to give her what she wanted. A year ago she left me, and went to live with a young chap who is nothing more than a drunkard and a parasite. Now she wishes to come back; her lover has deserted her and she is soon to be a mother. I am willing to forgive, for she means everything. Then, too, I am not entitled to cast the first stone. Yet I hesitate. How can I make sure that this affair will not be repeated? J. C. There is only one way of making sure, and that is by giving her to understand that you have truly forgiven her, that you trust her implicitly. Then, unless she is utterly lacking in character, she cannot fail to live up to your faith in her. Bitter experience has taught her a sad lesson—one that she cannot soon forget, and I honestly believe she will now be content in the haven of your love. Perhaps it took just this to make her grow up to develop that depth so necessary to the formation of real character in an individual. It may be that she will prove a better wife because of it, and that you will prove a better and more sympathetic husband. But don't leave her to seek good times with others. As her husband, it is your duty to be her companion and partner.

Sometimes a young couple loses all sense of proportion. They throw their priceless treasures away and literally sell their birthright for a mess of pottage. In the mad chase for pleasure they forget that real happiness and contentment come only to those who the lives of others with his own sorrows. Instead, he is facing everything with courage. He has learned in grappling with life that every one can ease the sorrows of life by smiling. He knows that the brave man possesses the world and that a smile is something more courageous than an army. He has learned that not only does a smile show courage but that it gives courage.

This is not the man who, in time of need, passes by on the other side. His expression shows that he has shared the sorrows of the world.

Says the WOMAN

Dear Patricia Lee:—

I have been married two years and my husband neglects me shamefully. He goes around to parties with other girls, and days pass when I neither see nor hear from him. Now I have met a young man of whom I am fond. He likes me, too. My mother and brothers object because his reputation is not so very good, but I am sure his feelings for me are sincere. He wants me to go out with him. We feel that I have a right, since my husband acts as he does. I am young and pretty, and attractive to men, and I do not feel I should waste my life sitting home while my husband steps out when he pleases.

What is this marriage business anyway, Phyllis, that you take it so lightly? A game of tag or post office? Two wrongs never made a right, and the fact that your husband steps out will not save your reputation if you follow suit. You couldn't get away with it, either. Women never do for long. Sooner or later you would find yourself in the center of one grand smash. Why don't you have a frank talk with your husband? Marriage is a serious business, and unless both of you call a halt yours is headed for disaster. A serious interest in life is what a baby to demand your attention. Too bad your husband doesn't concern himself with home-making or self-improvement instead of stepping out. You should take your pleasure together. As to the young man, doubtless your family is right.

live normal, wholesome lives. And what a price these love spend-thrifts pay! They kill each other's love and respect.

Scotch plaids are just the thing for Miss Six-to-Twelve's school frock. They are featured in pretty little models with removable white collars and Windsor ties, and may be worn with or without belts. Cuddling coats for baby boys and baby girls feature the brother-and-sister idea. All-wool chinchilla is a favorite fabric, and the featured colors are French blue, cocoa, red and green. ### Says the WOMAN

Dear Patricia Lee:—

I have been married two years and my husband neglects me shamefully. He goes around to parties with other girls, and days pass when I neither see nor hear from him. Now I have met a young man of whom I am fond. He likes me, too. My mother and brothers object because his reputation is not so very good, but I am sure his feelings for me are sincere. He wants me to go out with him. We feel that I have a right, since my husband acts as he does. I am young and pretty, and attractive to men, and I do not feel I should waste my life sitting home while my husband steps out when he pleases.

What is this marriage business anyway, Phyllis, that you take it so lightly? A game of tag or post office? Two wrongs never made a right, and the fact that your husband steps out will not save your reputation if you follow suit. You couldn't get away with it, either. Women never do for long. Sooner or later you would find yourself in the center of one grand smash. Why don't you have a frank talk with your husband? Marriage is a serious business, and unless both of you call a halt yours is headed for disaster. A serious interest in life is what a baby to demand your attention. Too bad your husband doesn't concern himself with home-making or self-improvement instead of stepping out. You should take your pleasure together. As to the young man, doubtless your family is right.

Coolidges Prepare To Leave Black Hills For Washington

By JOHN T. LAMBERT
(Universal Service Staff Correspondent)

RAPID CITY, S. D., Sept. 8.—President Coolidge tonight was on the verge of get-away day.

In twenty-four hours, the Coolidges will board their special train for Washington and bring to a close the longest, happiest and most eventful vacation since he became president. They will have been away thirteen weeks when they enter the reconstructed White House on Sunday night.

In all the bustle that attended "breaking" of the bustle the summer White House and the executive office, President Coolidge was today the calmest of his big entourage.

He manifests no anxiety to leave. Some of his associates believe he will make his departure from the Black Hills with some reluctance. He has found the fishing good. All the western folk have showered with breezy hospitality and many gifts. He has admired new scenery, enjoyed his daily ride of sixty-four miles through the peaceful hills and cattle country between the Game Lodge and his executive offices and has witnessed rodeos, Indian festivals and other carnivals entirely new to him.

The president has enjoyed almost a complete respite from troubles of government for the first time. The collapse of the Geneva Arms Parley and his momentous decision not to run again were the outstanding developments of his thirteen-weeks sojourn.

Yet, a count by the telegraph offices today showed that a veritable deluge of publicity attended his stay here. In excess of 2,000,000 words of news and feature stories were put up on the wires by the correspondents who "covered" his vacation. The big day was when he announced his decision not to run again. More than 60,000 words were sent from here that afternoon and night. Another 50,000 words followed the next day, a total of 110,000 words on a twelve-word announcement.

President Coolidge smiled reminiscently today and estimated that the ubiquitous cameramen must have photographed him a couple of hundred million times.

Janitors busied themselves today putting into readiness for the opening of the fall term next Monday the high school building which the president has occupied here for his executive offices. The desk and chair occupied by him will be held as mementos by the city but the president will take along with him the souvenir photographs of his July 4th birthday party and his attendance at the Bellefleur Rodeo which now adorn the walls. School desks were being installed today and the class rooms being arranged for the school opening.

President Coolidge, who enjoyed a complete holiday yesterday on his son, John's twenty-first birthday, came to his executive offices for a short time this morning to clear his desk and to shake hands with a few well-wishers. Mrs. Coolidge made a final shopping tour of Rapid City in search for souvenirs. John was up at five o'clock and started by auto with Colonel Winship, the president's aide, for the famous South Dakota bad lands, seventy miles distant.

A blue gas flame keeps your cooking utensils clean

A PERFECTLY working Gas Range is a delight to use. But at times, food boiling over or dust drawn in through the air mixers will carbonize and unless the burners are cleaned these particles will close the holes or ports of the burners. The result is a yellow flame or a "popping" noise when you turn off the gas. This is improper combustion.

The burners of your Gas Range are easily removed and should be cleaned each month to insure perfect combustion and cleanliness. Merely boil the burners in a solution of lye water or caustic soda until they are thoroughly clean.

You'll find it easy to keep your Gas Range as clean as any other piece of furniture in the house. The range will operate perfectly. It will last longer. You'll enjoy its speed, cleanliness and the ease of cooking with Gas—just as thousands of other women are doing today.

RICHMOND UNION AND UNIVERSITY HIGH TIE 0 TO 0

HILL'S TEAM HOLDS RIVALS IN FAST GAME

The score was 0 to 0 at the end of a hard-fighting game yesterday afternoon when the Richmond Union high school eleven played the University high school warriors on their home grounds. That the local team could hold the Berkeley contingent, classed as one of the strongest aggregations in the Bay region this season, shows what is to be expected of Richmond this year.

In the first half of the game, the Berkeleyites outplayed Richmond and several times it looked as though they would make touchdowns. Twice they succeeded in getting the ball to Richmond's five yard line. But they failed. Richmond held them to the four downs. The old strong defense that Richmond has been famous for blocked the University's attempt for touchdowns.

In the last half, Richmond played better ball, carrying the ball into Berkeley's sector. When the whistle blew, Richmond had the ball on Berkeley's twelve-yard line pulling hard for a touchdown.

The rough edges that showed up in last week's game were considerably smoothed and Coach Ivan Hill's men looked in better condition. They will resume training next week.

Tomorrow they play St. Helena. Those playing in yesterday's game were:

Jackson and Truitt, centers; Captain Diamantini and Minor Rountree and Neckel, guards; Schaefer, Dunleavy and Fisher, tackles; Fitzpatrick, J. Baldwin, Johnson and Barreter, ends; Williams and Bumgarner, quarter; Scarcella and Sakai, Swenson and Hall, halves and Baldwin, full.

ZANETTAS PLAY ORIOLES HERE

The Zanettas Cigars will play the Oakland Orioles today at First street park. The Orioles have a good team and have lost only two games this year. The Zanettas have won every game this season, so fans are in store for a bunch of thrills today. The game starts at 2:30 o'clock. Batteries for Zanettas are Viano and San Miguel.

LEAVE IT TO THE ENGLISH

QUEBEC, Sept. 8.—If you are in this giant country and wish to indulge in your yen for golf, it is well to pick out those sections where the English predominate.

The English cities of Canada are far ahead of the French-Canadian cities when it comes to golf. This is hardly a matter of surprise, as golf is native to England.

You will go a long way to find a finer golf course than the magnificent Lambton Golf club of Toronto. American courses may equal it, but few surpass it for natural topography and intelligent distribution of natural assets.

Whereas courses in the United States charge a greens fee of $5, Lambton assesses a guest $1 per day and in contrast to the United States caddy fee of $1 per round, Lambton sets a 50-cent per round limit for the caddies.

This is amazing to the American tourist who is so accustomed to being gyped by United States courses, few of which can offer what Lambton offers.

The caddies at the Lambton course are perfectly trained. It is "Yes sir" and "No sir" in answer to questions. After you have exulted yourself from a bunker, the caddy rakes the footprints with a rake that is left at every bunker.

American courses are far behind in these little details.

THE PRINCE PLAYED THERE

Toronto, in which the English predominate, offers the Lambton golf course and the Toronto Golf club. The Prince of Wales and his brother played at the Toronto club the other day.

This is another great layout. At Lambton, suspended in a frame above the hole where guests register, is the autograph of the Prince of Wales, secured when he played there as a comparative youngster in 1919.

Quebec is far behind, Toronto and Montreal in golf facilities. Quebec is dominated by the French and the French are new to the game. The Quebec Golf club, laid out above the St. Lawrence river, signally fails to capitalize on the natural bounties of the region. The fair greens are in bad shape and the greens are atrocious. No use has been made of artificial trapping and it simply resolves itself into a question of hitting the ball.

The only thing which will compensate an American here is the probability of getting a tiny French caddy to carry his clubs. Some of these little French kids can't understand you and who can make you understand him. They are good workers, however, and most of them are charming little scamps who roar with laughter when you hit into the rough. That is invariably the signal for a laugh from the French youngsters. "In the roff," they say, and go off in a gale of merriment.

GIRLS HAVE THEIR INNINGS

If there is one thing, more than another, that strikes your attention in this part of the Northwest, it is the emphasis which Toronto places upon girl athletes.

It seems that every place one goes in Toronto, particularly in the vicinity of the Canadian National Exhibition Grounds, there are girl baseball teams strutting their stuff. The Toronto Pats and Lakesides were engaged in a heated baseball game yesterday and there were over 1,000 in the stands at Sunnyside Park. They have played to 12,000. They play with an indoor baseball and the pitcher throws it underhand. Instead of calling it baseball, it is called "softball."

The game has its outstanding first just like the American game of baseball.

The Conacher sisters, related to Lionel Conacher, famous Canadian all-around athlete, are known to every Toronto sporting fan. Ann Miller is rated as highly at shortstop as we rate Tommy Thynrow, the St. Louis Cardinal star. Nora Gordon is another equally well known player. She plays with the Lakesides.

CANADIAN JEWISH ATHLETE

Probably one of the best softball players in the game is Fannie Rosen, Canadian Jewish all-around girl athlete. She plays first base for the Toronto Pats and she is a corking player. Miss Rosenfeld is a natural athlete. She has broken most of the girls' world's records in running. A Canadian Dutch girl, the former Miss Rose Grosche, was the only one who ever could beat Miss Rosenfeld in speed trials.

San Francisco—Steamer "California" largest built under American flag, will soon enter New York-California run.

Bowling League Prizes Awarded To 3 Winners

Prizes in the Richmond bowling league were awarded at the local alleys to the following: Alverts Inc., first prize; Den O' Sweets, second; Curley's Cigar store, third, with Richmond Rose and V. G. Electric finishing fourth and fifth.

County Grid Season To Start October 7

Football schedules of Contra Costa county high schools will commence October 7, according to word received yesterday. The schedules have not yet been outlined. The athletic league will meet September 16 to fix both the football and basketball schedules for the season. Delegates from the high schools are being chosen.

BEARS TO WEAR LIGHTER SUITS

BERKELEY, Sept. 8.—Speed seems to be the watchword at the training quarters of the University of California football squad where the Bears' paraphernalia for the 1927 season is being prepared.

Although there will be no change in the appearance of the uniforms, which were designed especially for the California team Head Coach Nibs Price last year, they will be almost a pound lighter, affording freer movement.

Lighter stockings, stockings and helmets will be used, while the jersey is made of a lightweight wool because of the heat.

The Bears will wear the blue jersey with gold striped sleeves throughout the season. Last year gold jerseys were worn for the St. Mary's game, but that school has agreed to wear white for the contest on October 8.

REHABILITATION OF JENNY WREN IS UNDER WAY

Plans for the rehabilitation of the Jenny Wren Stores, Inc., operating a chain of fifty-two stores in the bay district and which recently went into the hands of a receiver, have been worked out and will be presented to the stockholders at a meeting next Monday night at the Palace hotel.

Announcement of completion of the plans was made yesterday by L. C. Frazer, local representative of the General Funding Company of Los Angeles, and confirmed by Arnold C. Luckenbach, attorney representing some of the largest stockholders. The General Funding Company was engaged some time ago to examine condition of the grocery company and prepare a plan for "revamping" the financial structure. It was while this plan was being worked out that the recent receivership proceedings were started.

That the stockholders will accept the new plan was the opinion expressed by representatives of several of the largest stockholders.
In view of reports that efforts were being made by the owner of a competing chain store company to buy the Jenny Wren "plant," and that an offer had been made to the receivers, it is expected that every effort to protect their interests.

Luckenbach said yesterday:
"The plan for rehabilitation of the company will take care of immediate debts and give working capital sufficient to meet all needs. The stockholders naturally will vigorously oppose any move to sell the Jenny Wren company.
Any offer will be for a sum not much larger than the debts. In view of the fact that the company has tangible assets of $1,000,000,
we do not relish losing the money."
"If any such offer is made and referred to the court we will oppose it."

FIRST FIRE CHIEF IN RICHMOND VISITS HERE

James McMullen, first fire chief of Richmond is spending a few days in Richmond renewing acquaintances. He was chief of the local fire department when the entire city was located at the Point. Now he is a "gentleman farmer" near Windsor in the vicinity of Santa Rosa. Occasionally he comes to Richmond and says he enjoys wandering along Macdonald avenue where lots could be purchased 25 years ago for $150.

College Men To Supervise Play

Five graduates of Richmond
Union high school who are now attending St. Mary's and the University of California, will supervise play after schools and on Saturdays, according to City Recreational Director W. L. Seaveright.

Those selected as ground supervisors are: Ray Campbell, at Stone and Nystrom schools; Ernest Barber, at the Richmond high school;
Boyd Hecker, Grant school; Charles Cecil, Washington and Persis schools and Walter Gordon at Lincoln school.

The playground work is under the supervision of the school board and is intended to benefit the youth of the city by keeping them occupied during leisure hours. On Saturdays, the hours will be from 9 to 12 and from 1 to 4. According to "Doc" Sen-wright, regular playground programs will be arranged and leagues formed in the various sports, such as baseball, basketball and soccer.

FAST SERVICE INAUGURATED BY PHONE CO.

The "straightforward trunking" system for the Richmond office of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company will be put into service at 11 o'clock tonight, according to George Calvert, local manager.

The new system will eliminate the "Call trunking" system, by which the operator is compelled to call a trunk line for a subscriber when numbers other than local are given and has proved a time-saving element in other exchanges where employed. Hereafter the caller will hear only a "zip-zip" over the line and the number repeated by the operator in place of the exchange and number as heretofore, on other than local calls. The second operator answers "right" and the number is ready.

Calvert stated yesterday that an efficiency check recently made on the "thank you" system installed here and elsewhere, showed that in the local office out

Rotary Club Not To Meet Today

There will be no meeting of the Richmond Rotary club today. The local organization will observe Admission Day.

On next Friday, Rotarians will celebrate the 140th anniversary of the adopting of the federal constitution. Attorney Hall W. Sanders, past president of the Kiwanis club, will deliver an address on "The Signing of the Declaration." Sanders is regarded as one of the ablest orators in the Eastbay region and the members of Rotary are looking forward to his address.

Mrs. Myra Thayer Entertains At Party

Mrs. Myra Thayer entertained members of Unity lodge, Daughters of St. George and their man-folk, at her home, 1252 Fifty-sixth street, last night. The winners at whist last night were: Mrs. Bessie Medlicott, H. Waddingham, Robison, Mrs. Fred Wagner, and Mrs.
K. Williams. The next meeting of Unity lodge will be at Woodman hall, Wednesday, September 14.

will be extended to other exchang-

World Flyers In Hanoi After Hop

safety of the two flyers is gaining hourly.

NO LANDING PLACE
Not only is the section without ready communication, sparsely settled and of exceptionally rough topography, but it is almost bar-ren of spaces usable as emergency landing fields.

It was recalled, however, that in June, 1924, the American army world flyers were "missing" in substantially the same sector for two days, but finally reported at Saigon and proceeded to complete their flight.

One telling handicap of the Schlee-Brock plane might lie in the lack of pontoons which would permit them in case they lost their position to hunt the coast and alight on the water. Lacking marine equipment they are required to continue overland through what has been described as the world's hottest climate, across a terrain of impenetrable jungles and precipitous mountains.

The American army world flyers abandoned a shortened overland route in that zone because of the absence of fields and, attaching pontoons, proceeded along the coast.

RICHMOND BANK BANDIT SAID TO ADMIT MURDER

of Police Dan Cox of Richmond, and Deputy R. L. McNamara was one of the clearest hits of detective work reported in many years.
McFarlin's arrest came months later in Denver where his undoing was caused by his being turned in by a pal on a bootlegging charge.

McFarlin and the "banker's son", whom he met in Denver, drove to St. Louis and returned in a stolen car and it was while the pair were in St. Louis that the alleged murder of the police officer took place. Following his arrest in Denver, McFarlin confessed to his participation in the bank robbery and was sentenced February 1 and sent to San Quentin the next day.

May 28 of this year, McFarlin, who lived in Albany, escaped from San Quentin. He was found hiding near the warden's residence, again fled and escaped bullets fired by guards, but surrendered.

AMERICANS IN CHINA FIRED ON BY BANDITS

CALCUTTA, Sept. 9.—Two American families named Duncan and Macleod, including five children, were fired on and robbed by bandits as they were enroute from Nautang, on the Tibetan border, to Lianzong, Burma.

The heroism of a servant of the Macleod family saved the lives of both families.

The party, suffering great privations, reached Atuntee.

In contemplating what he has done for others the average man is apt to overlook what others have done for him.

Smiths, Browns, Joneses Outnumbered In St. Paul

United Press.
ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 9.—Other states may have their Browns, their Joneses, and their Smiths, but Minnesota has its Andersons, Johnsons, and Petersons.

Taking St. Paul, the capital of the state, as a representative Minnesota City, it is learned there are 2,570 Johnsons as compared to 1,050 Browns; 2,550 Petersons compared to 630 Smiths; and 1,550 Andersons compared to 280 Joneses.

Other Scandinavian names predominate in St. Paul, as is shown from the following figures obtained from the city directory: Carlsons, 170; Ericksons, 880; Jonsens, 400.

The population of St. Paul is about 250,000.

A few good ribuses in the chorus are apt to aid the opera in making a hit.

CALIFORNIA IS 77 YEARS OLD AS A STATE

United Press.
SANTA CRUZ, Cal., Sept. 9.—Six special trains, laden with "native sons and daughters," bore in upon Santa Cruz today, marking the opening of a three-day carnival to celebrate the 77th anniversary of California's statehood.

Three of the trains came from San Francisco; two were from Oakland and the sixth was from San Jose. These passengers will augment the thousands of celebrants already here.

Nearly 150 separate native sons' and daughters' organizations will march today in the great parade. The procession will be the outstanding event of the carnival.

The parade has been divided into nine divisions and an advance guard. Grand Marshal John A. Corotto will lead the winding train of floats, automobiles, bands and uniformed marchers. Chief of Police Daniel J. O'Brien of San Francisco will be in the advance guard, along with Mayor James Rolph of San Francisco and other San Francisco officials.

The 63rd coast artillery is entered in the procession. Later the corps will give an elaborate demonstration of target practice against floating objects and an exhibition of its searchlight drills.

Both Santa Cruz and Capitola where an overflow celebration will be held, were buried in bunting today. The state and national flags fluttered from every store and residence.

U. S. Capital Feared by British In Persia

United Press.
LONDON, Sept. 9.—The continued flow of American capital into Persia is causing British industrialists considerable worry, principally due to fears that none of the contracts there will fall to British firms.

The largest and most important scheme in Persia will be a railroad from the capital, Teheran, to Khur Musa, near Basra, where an up-to-date port will be constructed. This port will be the official outlet for goods sent by way of the Persian gulf. Another important railway is to be built from Mohammedan, on the Persian gulf, to Bendori-Gaz, on the southern shores of the Caspian sea.

In addition to these railway developments, a number of canals are being built and a considerable construction scheme of roads is planned.

Jazz Band Funeral for Italian Bachelor

PARMA, Italy, Sept. 9.—Proceeded by a jazz band, and followed by a ribald crowd of roysters, the body of a rich and eccentric bachelor, much given in life to feasting, mirth and good living, was taken to the cemetery of Basanzoni di Golese, near here, for burial.

Guido Popoli, the eccentric bachelor, 43, left a will in which he ordered these strange rites to be performed at his funeral.

His wishes were respected, and the jazz band played dance tunes and popular airs all the way to the cemetery, while a group of about 20 of the deceased's boon companions followed the coffin, singing and shouting at the top of their voices.

The testator left a clause in his will that a money prize should be awarded to the person who perpetrated the most comical joke during the funeral procession.

A jury awarded the prize at a banquet of gargantuan proportions held after the funeral, and paid for with funds left by the eccentric bachelor.

Marine Hunts Needy U. S. Citizens He Came to Aid

TIENTSIN, Sept. 9.—"We came to China to protect refugees and missions. So far we haven't seen a single refugee or mission."

Such is the plaint attributed by the American-owned North China Star to one of the 1500 U. S. Marines stationed in Tientsin. The Star quotes reports that the Marines are to be sent home soon, and says they have been living under uncomfortable and insanitary conditions which renders their stay dangerous to health.

Living in tents, the men are drenched in the frequent heavy summer rains and alternately subjected to dusty conditions which endanger their respiratory organs. The Star further quotes its Marine thus: "Tientsin doesn't seem to worry over any invasion or attack. Tientsin eats, dances, drinks and goes on its merry way, and we seem to be here without any definite work to do or any objective to gain. We are fighters, we Marines. We crave action and there is no action here and not likely to be any."

Another Record

Captain Hubert Broad, British flyer, has established a world's altitude record for light planes by climbing 20,000 feet in 17 minutes in a De Havilland Tiger Moth. He could not go higher because he was not carrying oxygen.

THREE HANGED FOR MURDER IN MARYLAND

BALTIMORE, Sept. 9.—Three negro men were hanged for murder at Maryland State penitentiary early today in the first triple execution in the history of the city.

Otto Simmons and Arthur Swan went to the gallows for the murder of Joseph E. Carpenter during a holdup in Charles county January 8. William H. Ross paid with his life for the murder of Mrs. Lottie McElfresh, Thurston, Md., this summer.

There were no demonstrations, but a heavy armed guard was thrown about the prison.

Pinole News

PINOLE, Sept. 9.—Mr. and Mrs. C. Costa were visitors in Modesto over the week end.

Mrs. W. C. Gerrish and brother William were Oakland visitors recently.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Medina and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Aspland of Hercules motored to Hanford to visit Mrs. Aspland's daughter Mrs. McCarthy recently.

Albino Marcos, Edwin Marcos and Dorothea Young motored to Merced for the holidays and the two young ladies remained there for a few weeks visit with friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Marcos Jr. are spending their honeymoon in the Yosemite valley. Upon their return they will make their home in Richmond.

Cleveland Has Funds For 1928 Convention

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 9.—Cleveland bid for the National Publicity convention, next summer has been given added impetus with the announcement that the committee in charge already has sufficient funds to entertain the delegates.

James L. E. Jappe, secretary to Colonel Carl A. Thompson, who heads a committee to bring the 1928 convention to Cleveland said today, assurances of $150,000 to finance the convention have been received by the committee.

FALSE ARREST CHARGED IN DAMAGE SUIT

MARTINEZ, Sept. 9.—A $10,000 suit for alleged false arrest and imprisonment was filed here today against the Columbia Steel company, Sheriff R. E. Yeale, Deputy Sheriff J. M. Josephs, Y. L. Harvill, deputy sheriff, and an employee of the steel company, and Coopertana Heredia, a steel worker, by Otto C. Avery of Antioch, a former employee of the company.

Avery was arrested on October 5, 1925 during a strike at the steel company's plant, when he was charged with making threats against Heredia's life because the latter would not join the 100 men who had quit work. Avery in his suit denied permission to see him and that his demands to be taken before a judge so that bail could be fixed were ignored. Avery also alleges that the complaint and warrant for his arrest was not filed until after his detention. He was later released in the Pittsburgh Justice Court.

In Heredia's complaint at the time of the arrest it was alleged that Avery and two other workmen came to the Heredia home, threatened his life and ordered him out of town because he would not go out on strike.

37,000,000 IN LABOR BODIES OF WORLD

United Press.
GENEVA, Sept. 9.—Organized labor throughout the world now has a total membership of over 37,000,000, according to statistics completed by the International Labor Bureau here.

Of this number, only about one-third, or 13,000,000 are affiliated with the International Federation of Trade Unions which has its headquarters at Amsterdam.

Of those countries where the bulk of organized labor is aligned with the Amsterdam organization, Germany heads the list with 4,582,366 members, while England comes second with 4,385,619.

These are the only centers that total over a million members. Among the next larger ones are Australia with 800,000 workers; France with 600,000, and Belgium with 550,000.

Special mention is made in the report of Argentine with its 82,000 workers who are affiliated with the Amsterdam International as one of the overseas countries that has made the most remarkable progress in this respect.

A dentist says that a woman loses her teeth sooner than a man. Probably she wears them out with her tongue.

Speaking of love, a man should look before he leaps—otherwise he may fall in.

Mumm Objects

Before departing from San Francisco to the Orient, Arnold L. Mumm, of Paris, son of Jules Mumm, of champagne fame, expressed his opinion on prohibition in words that included "unnecessary," "unjustifiable" and "all a mistake." He is on his way to visit his friend, Sir Charles Eliot, former British ambassador to Japan.

Wandering Minstrels Banned by Mussolini

ROME, Sept. 9.—It is reported that the Italian government has banned the wandering minstrels from the national dignity. Premier Mussolini has ruled. The tinkling of mandolins or the twanging of guitars will be heard no more on the trains in Italy, where it has been an accepted custom for wandering minstrels to purchase a ticket for one of the slow day trains and recede the passengers with more or less appreciated melody.

INTERNATIONAL ROW SEEN IN DIVORCE SUIT

EL PASO, Tex., Sept. 9.—An international complication may arise as the result of District Judge W. D. Howe, granting a divorce to Rafael Avileza, Mexican consul at El Paso, it was believed here today.

Avileza said in court that his wife, divorced government secret, she learned from him in her "kissling."

Attorneys declared the granting of the divorce at least set a precedent in United States law and placed a peculiar interpretation on existing federal statutes. Federal courts cannot try divorce cases but have exclusive jurisdiction of proceedings against consuls. Judge Howe ruled that there was no way to prevent a consul from bringing suit against others, however.

Milady's Bow Wow To Wear Snakeskin

PARIS, Sept. 9.—Paris dress makers determining coming winter styles are paying almost a much attention to the dress of pe dogs as to that of their owners.

Designers of canine equipment are seeking to keep the collar, blankets, sweaters, etc., of a woman's dog in harmony with the tone of his mistress's attire.

The snakeskin rage has spread to the dogs, and reflected in snake skin collars and leashes, some of these with modern buckles.

One shop is exhibiting dogs sweaters in the new printed wools and another elaborate mode trimmed with fur.

Canada Is Wiser

Having seen how, with the industrial and commercial development of other countries, their natural resources have been over-exploited and the beauties of the landscape as well as the wild life of nature to a great extent destroyed, Canada, which is now in the midst of a period of great industrial expansion, has taken steps to prevent a similar fate befalling it.

The United States made the costly mistake of awakening to the value of natural resources when they approached exhaustion, but its experience has prevented Canada from wasting her virgin forests and despoiling her natural wonders. This is a matter of concern to the United States for it is the largest consumer of Canadian natural resources.

American inaugurated its national park program soon enough to save many of the natural wonders and beauties of the west for public park purposes to delight this and future generations, but too late to give other sections of the country equal park facilities. Even now the federal government is procrastinating in conserving the relatively few virgin forests standing in the east and south.

Here again Canada has an advantage. She staked out her national parks before civilization had made any serious inroads into her forests primeval, conserving 11,000 square miles of wilderness for the pleasure of her citizens and guests and for preservation of her abundant wild life.

Could the American people fifty years ago have seen into the future the United States would now have more national parks and would have paid less for them. It is paying dearly enough for the experience not to make the mistake twice.

More Doctors

Approximately 5,000 young men and women will enter the colleges and universities of the United States this month to begin the study of medicine. Virtually all of them have, as a foundation for the medical knowledge to be gathered in the approaching years, four years of non-medical college training and now face four years in medical school and then three or more years hospital work before they blossom forth as full-fledged doctors. After that come the hard years of building up a practice large enough to provide a "living wage."

The doctor's bill never seems exorbitant when considered in relation with the long, hard and costly years of preparation for the profession. Tuition fees of medical students for one school year exceeds $5,000,000, and tuition is but one of many items in the budget of a student.

Society is confident that the medical schools are better equipped than ever in the past for producing good doctors and that the young men and women who this month begin the study of medicine are fully conscious of the grave responsibility they are assuming and of the great work that is open to them when they complete their academic training. The human element being equal, the medical student has a far better chance of mastering his profession than did the medical student of an earlier time.

Modern medical schools bring to their students the sum of the world's knowledge of medicine, personal instruction from acknowledged masters in every branch of the subject, practical experience and complete mechanical equipment.

Enrollment in the country's eighty medical schools has increased fifty per cent in eight years. It is the hope of the public that the schools are not sacrificing quality for quantity.

Serious Side of College

It is frequently said in depreciation of college men that they go to college to have a good time first and an education afterwards. Apparently some good people believe that it is purely accidental when a young man proves that he learned something in college besides social etiquette and athletics.

The facts in the case are that no man or woman ever left an institution of higher learning without some degree of mental improvement, that the serious side of college life is never seen by the public, while the lighter side is always on display and that very often getting an education is a struggle instead of a saturnalia of spending and sporting.

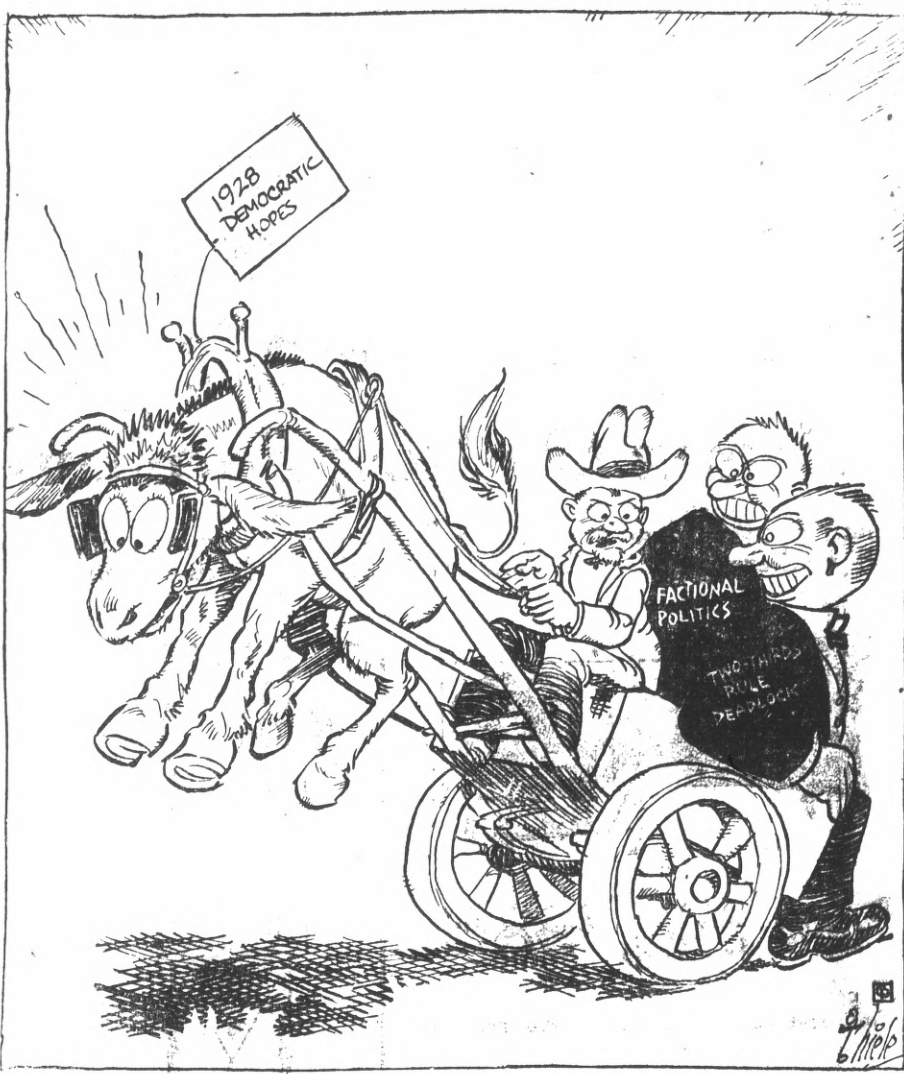

All colleges and universities report an increasing number of students working their way through school and the number of college men and women who are not gainfully employed during the summer vacation period is now negligible. As far as working at their studies is concerned, there is no American institution of higher education which will tolerate low scholastic standings. The individual student must be 75 per cent efficient or leave by request.

A college education needs no defense as it is now almost universally accepted as a necessity. It may be criticized regarding its efficiency, but until all young men and women become 100 per cent efficient as students colleges and universities can not attain that perfection of efficiency.

However, how many of those who condemn the college man for not working his way through school study while they are working for a livelihood? Studying is as much a man's job as shoveling.

A humorous writer pleading for immediate abolition of the word Reaction claims it has been over-worked. There was bound to be a reaction.

Peter's Adventures — IN — Animal Land

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

COAT OF MANY COLORS
Great Grandfather Always-Catch It gave a hop that carried him close to Peter and then grinned so broadly that the boy was sure the ends of his mouth must be meeting at the back of his green head. Then, when he did speak, the old Frog answered Peter's question with another one.

"How do you think I got my name?" asked Great Grandfather, and all the Frogs bent forward to hear what the boy would reply.

"Because you never fail to capture your prey?" answered Peter, certain he was correct this time. All the Frogs croaked approval and Great Grandfather nodded.

"Right-o!" declared he. "I always catch it. Water bug or land flyer, it makes no difference. Let it venture within my reach and it is lost to the world forever. How do I do it, you ask? Take a good look at me, Two-Legs! What color am I?"

"Green!" cried the boy at once, then he added, quickly:

"No, you're not, either! That is, not all of you is green. Your coat is, but your feet are brown, and you have yellow spots on your back and dark stripes over your shoulders and—"

Great Grandfather interrupted him.

"Good. You are a very observant youngster!" said he. "I like you and I am going to get you into our secret. Why do you suppose a Frog wears all these colors? Not just to look pretty, I hope."

"I don't know; I never thought about it!" said the boy slowly. "Why do you?"

"For protection's sake, of course," replied Great Grandfather, and the Frogs cried in chorus:

"For protection's sake, of course. That is the Froggie's secret!"

Great Grandfather Always-Catch

It continued: "My green coat is beautiful, I will admit, but it is useful as well; it is just the shade of the leaves and grass, and those deep over my shoulders and down my back look like plant stems. As for those yellow spots they appear like flower stamens. My feet are brown like the bare earth on which I move, and underneath the sun makes the water glisten like silver? My vest gleams like glimmering water. When I am in the shallows you could scarcely tell where my vest begins and the ripples leave off."

"My coat of many colors is my best friend. Come, now, young Two-Legs. I leave it to you. Should I sit perfectly still in the pond or underneath a plant upon the shore one would need to have very bright eyes to find me, would he not?"

"I should say so!" declared Peter.

"The thing that usually gives me away is my breathing," said Great Grandfather. "See my breast goes in and out, like this!" Grandfather illustrated by puffing out his slimy chest. "And my eyes are too bright. They shine when I wish they wouldn't and they are so big! To be sure, I'm proud of them, but small eyes might be safer."

"As I was about to say, though, when I keep perfectly quiet I am hidden, even when I am almost in the open. My clothes are so much like my surroundings. But to be unobserved, I must keep still. No sly sneaking off for me! I can't sneak. I must hop! My back legs are so much longer, too, than my front ones, that it is quite useless to try to hop smoothly. Try as I will, I always jerk, and, of course, then folks know right away who is coming."

ABOUT FASHION HINTS

United Press Fashion Editor.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—Velvet

and velvet combined with con-tasting fabrics will play important roles in fall millinery. Plain, embossed and printed velvets will perhaps be most important although the following combinations are also frequently shown: velvet and velours, velvet and satin, velvet and foiled velvet and bengaline, velvet and brocade and velvet and gold leather.

It is thought that plain velours and felts will prevail for morning wear while velvets and combinations of velvet and other fabrics will rule for afternoon occasions.

Perhaps it is due to the velvet vogue, that turbans of draped type are returning to fashion. One sees many turbans among the French millinery as well as among American models.

In selecting a dress trimmed with tiers, select one which has diagonal tiers rather than horizontal tiers as the former types are newer.

The slightly raised waistline is suggested in many of the advanced fall gowns, oftentimes the raising of the waist being suggested at the front only. A horizontal drape of tuck may be all that is necessary to suggest the raising of the waist.

Black lace used as a lingerie item for trimmings instead of fabric is emphasized in fall collections. Item step-ins of black scalloped-edged laces with the scallops forming the borders are shown for dressy wear. When black lace is used for trimming it is generally combined with pale pink georgette or net and this combination is repeated often.

Brown is to be one of the outstanding fall fabric shades. Almost all of the darker browns will be used as well as woodbrown tones and reddish browns. Shoes, hosiery and handbags of brown will be important, due to the vogue for costume harmony.

Carnelian and jade jewelry will replace the popular pinkish rose-quartz as fall advances. Both real and imitation stones of carnelian

HOW TO Achieve Beauty

By MRS. HELENA RUBENSTEIN

BEAUTY TIME FOR THE HOME

WOMAN

Of all the women with whom I come in contact, the home woman is the most apt to feel she has no time for beauty. That is, the woman whose home responsibilities are her chief interest, who gets along without a servant or with only one at the most, and who has anywhere from one to three children.

There are two main reasons why she neglects her beauty. First of all, she is contented. If she is happily married, she knows that her husband likes her just as she is, and she does not see the need of improving her appearance, or even of preventing her natural good looks from slipping away from her into the past.

Then again, she may feel that she would like to be more attractive if only she could, but she is too busy looking after the physical needs of her family. It is natural for a woman to give her time and self for others, and to think she is selfish if she spends time on herself. But this is also, together with the wrong attitude, for an attractive woman can always mean more to other people than one who is not. It is her duty to make her husband and children and everyone with whom she comes in contact proud of her. I cannot repeat too often that women wear the beauty habit because their husbands do not like to see them greased up. You must always remember that a man is interested in the results and not the machinery of beauty. If you have an attractive vanity case or a pretty box of powder with a big fluff puff, he will like those things because they are pleasing to look upon, really feminine, and it will do no harm to have him see them. The creams and the chin strap, though, like the curl papers that antedated the permanent wave, are much better kept out of sight. It is no more necessary for your husband to be an eye witness to your entire beauty regime when it is for you to follow him downtown to see just how he makes his money. So my advice is don't force personal details on your husband's attention.

That really leaves you rather limited in the time you can devote to beauty. At night your husband will be home and you must give your thoughts to his comfort and relaxation. In the morning, you will be getting him his breakfast and you should spend your extra time getting into something neat and attractive so that he will have an attractive vision of you to carry through the day. You probably will not find a large chunk of time you can take out of your

READ THIS FIRST:

SALLY JEROME, 20, and pretty and clever, is the prop and mainstay of her family in the absence of her father, who has been separated from her mother for nine years.

The family consists of MRS. JEROME, the twins, BEAU and MILLIE, and Sally, herself. Mrs. Jerome is a semi-invalid, so Sally does the housework mornings and works for MR. PEEVEY downtown afternoons.

In the flat below Jerome lives young TED SLOAN, an auto salesman, who wants Sally to marry him and keep on working. But the only man in whom Sally is interested is JOHN NYE, whose office is just across the hall from Mr. Peevey's. Nye has hired the flirtatious Millie as his secretary, and Millie is waiting to take the job as soon as he returns from a trip to see his mother, who is ill at a summer resort. Millie, out of work for the time being, borrows from Sally to "ride her over" until she starts work. Beau borrows some money, too, and tricks Sally into paying for the refreshments for a party given at the flat by his girl, MABEL WILMOT. Mabel is always dropping into the flat quite as if it were her own home, taking Sally's bed when she stays all night, and ordering what she wants to eat for breakfast, and so on.

Saturday night Beau, who has been practically penniless for a week, blossoms out with some new clothes and ties, to my nothing of a guitar. In addition he lends Millie some money to buy herself a dress that she has been wanting. Sally wonders where he got a sudden flood of money, and begins to worry about him when he asks her if she has any. In case should have to borrow it at short notice. For Beau works at a bank, where he is constantly surrounded by money. The next day Sally leaves the Sunday dinner to cook while she does some extra work for Mr. Peevey. When she returns early in the afternoon she finds a note from Millie saying that the family had all gone for a drive with a friend of her named DAVIDSON and will bring him back with them to supper.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

All that hot Sunday afternoon Sally flew about the flat putting things in order.

While she worked she kept the phonograph going, and the sound of its gay music made the work seem light and easy, as it always did.

By 6 o'clock everything was spick and span, and the table was set for a cold supper. The lamb was sizzled and garnished with parsley, and underneath the mint. There was a salad and a pitcher of iced tea in readiness in the ice box. There was a plateful of lettuce sandwiches, too, but no dessert. One of Sally's small economies was to leave out dessert when there was a salad for a meal.

"Well, now the cook and housemaid will turn herself into a lady of fashion," she said cheerfully to herself, and went to dress.

It was pleasant to have the bedroom to herself. To slip out of her clothes, into an icy shower, and then into fresh, clean things. To dawdle before the mirror, dusting violet-scented powder on her soft skin, even borrowing some of Millie's pink nail-glass for her pointed fingers.

She was cool and fragrant in an old brown linen dress when she opened the door, expecting to see the family crowded into the hall, but only Ted Sloan stood there, in his shirt sleeves.

"Is Beau here?" he asked shortly, looking beyond her into the empty living room.

Sally shook her head. "No, he's been gone all day," she said. "The whole family went for a drive with that friend of Millie's you met the other night—that Mr. Davidson. They said they'd be back for supper."

"Well, I'll come in for a while and wait. I ought to see Beau to-night on a little matter of business. Here's a new record I bought for you last night." Ted handed her a new dance record for the phonograph.

"Every now and then he bought one for her instead of taking her to the movies or for an evening of dancing. Ted had to count the pennies, too, just as she did.

The new record had an entrancing melody, and Ted sank the words, sitting in Mrs. Jerome's old da' to devote to beauty, but there are sure to be moments you can make count. It really is not necessary to keep your face cream on a great length of time. If you keep it on 20 while you are planning your menu or peeling vegetables, you will have practically the same benefits you would in retaining it over night. The skin can absorb about all it is capable of in that length of time. The same with your astringent, balsam and jellies for firming the contour and with your chin straps—you can find slices of time during the day when keeping those beautifying agents on will not interfere with your work. There is a balsam and a Roman-jelly that will be absorbed right into the skin and can be used at any time during the day."

But the most important thing for the home woman, as for every woman, is to get the beauty habit in mind. Then she will rinse her scalp with lemon and massage her hair with some matter of course. My next talk will be "Beauty Time for the Woman of Much Leisure."

Sally's Shoulders

HER MAN

THE HOLLYWOOD
GIRL, ETC.

Green velvet chair?

"I could be happy."

"I could be good or

I could be bad."

"It all depends on you—"

"Lot of truth in that song, Sally."

he said, breaking off in the middle.

"A man can do anything anything at all. You see, it all does depend on the girl he's crazy about. She can make him do anything she wants him to, and she can break him, too."

He looked down at her soberly, puffing at his little old brown pipe. He had been extremely sober and serious ever since the night she had called him a "poor palooka" and begged him not to make love to her.

Tonight he was more than sober. Something seemed to weigh heavily upon his mind. His gray eyes, usually so twinkling, had a frown between them.

"I could make money or spend it," he went on sipping in an undertone as the music rippled along. "Go right on living or—"

"What did you want to see Beau about?" Money asked. Sally quickly turned her head.

"The word 'money' on Ted's lips had brought back all her doubts about Beau and his mysterious riches into her mind.

"Yeah," Ted answered. "He borrowed some from me—that is, I gave him a check for it the other day—and he promised to pay me today."

She gave a keen little sigh of relief. So that was it! Beau had borrowed the money from Ted Sloan.

"And wasn't I dreadful to think he might have got in some dishonest way?" Sally scolded herself.

She confessed herself now that she had been afraid that Beau had "picked up" the money somewhere around the bank where he worked. . . . And it had been such an easy thing to believe of Beau, who had always strolled in with nickels and dimes from his mother's purse when he was a little boy.

"How much does he owe you, Ted?" she asked, knowing that Beau had spent the money on his one and another the week before.

"Ten dollars," Ted answered. "It isn't very much, I know, but I need it. I didn't sell a single car last year. You know this is a bad time of year in the automobile business."

He went rambling on, full of explanations, but Sally wasn't listening to him.

Ten dollars, she was thinking. Ten dollars, she was thinking. Ten dollars wouldn't begin to account for the money that Beau had had last week! Forty-five dollars to Millie; more than that on clothes for himself, twenty or so for the guitar. She added up the items and her heart seemed to sink right down into her shoes as she did it. . . . Where HAD Beau got that money?

The door of the flat opened, and he stood there, his hat in his hand. Ted had heard him come up the stairs and unlock the door.

But there he stood, his eternal cigarette pasted on his lower lip, his straw hat on the side of his head, his handsome young face flushed to a bright pink with the day's ride in the sun. Under his arm he carried a pasteboard box of ice cream.

When he saw Ted he gave a start, looked "seven ways for Sunday," as Sally later described it to herself, and then came jauntily into the room.

"Hello, old man," he said, and went straight through to the kitchen. Before Ted had time to follow him he was back in the living room again.

The folks are down stairs. They're coming right up," he said to Sally. "They're having a time getting mother out of the car. Her foot's gone to sleep and I'll go back and give them a hand. But I thought I'd better bring up this cream before it melted. It's for supper."

He vanished, and Ted went down the back porch steps to his own home, refusing Sally's invitation to stay to supper.

There was a shuffling on the landing outside the door a minute afterwards, and Beau and Millie appeared leading Mrs. Jerome, who groaned as she came. Behind her came Mabel Wilmot, carrying her hand bag, her coat and a large pair of sun glasses.

"Get me into my own bed," Mrs. Jerome was walling. "I'd never leave it again until I'm paralyzed from the knees down. I know it!"

"Don't be such a fool, Mother!" snapped Millie. "You know your feet are asleep and that's all that's wrong with them! You make me sick, acting like a baby! A woman old enough to be a grandmother!"

She appealed to Sally, her blue eyes, straggling her voice full of fury and disgust. "Let me tell you what she did!" she yelled. "Sat up in the front seat beside Davy all day long, and just talked an ear off him! She just ruined the whole day—the whole day—away!" She lapsed into her lazy drawl, but her eyes still snapped like blue steel.

"Will you be still!" Sally shook her head at her. "Aren't you ashamed of yourself, Millie Jerome? Talking about your mother like that! You just leave her alone. I'll take care of her."

She brushed the scatter-brained trio away from her as if they had been so many house flies, and led her mother into her own room, where her bed, her mirror, and her electric fan were waiting for her.

The strain of the long ride had completely exhausted her. But after a glass of hot milk she could lie back on her pillows and talk.

"Did Mr. Davidson stop for supper?" she asked, and shook her head regretfully when Sally said that he had not stayed.

"I'm afraid he doesn't care two pins about little Millie," she said. She always instantly forgave Millie for her rudeness and went on calling her "little Millie" and petting her. "It was you he talked about all day. He told me you seemed like such a wholesome, sensible girl, and he was so disappointed this morning when he found you couldn't go with us. I'm afraid he planned this little outing just for you!" She smiled romantically.

U. S. WEATHER BUREAU RAPPED BY FORECASTER

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to The Independent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 9.—Herbert Jarvin, Brown, reputed prophet of a summerless 1927, is pretty rough with the government weather bureau, and especially with Prof. Chas. F. Marvin, its chief.

HERBERT J. BROWN

Writing to Secretary of Agriculture Jarvin under the bureau's name, Jarvin says that Marvin has used "every foul means at his command" to discredit "the development of scientific long range weather forecasting."

To put it briefly, Brown accuses the professor of pooh-poohing the latest improved methods of weather prophecy because his bureau didn't discover them first.

According to Brown: The sun alternately warms up and, relatively, cools off. The cycle's 11 years. Minute temperatures follow the sun's. Every 11th year we're due for extra cold weather. Our cycle, however, is three years behind the sun's. Why? Because it's the sea, rather than the solid earth, which retains the sun's heat when it waxes. The periodically warming and cooling waters wash our shores and affect our climate, as the ocean currents flow, and it takes them about three years to make the rounds.

Allowing for a few other modifying influences, there, says Brown, is the whole science of meteorology in a nutshell.

The weather bureau denies that the sun's heat varies. If it does, the bureau maintains that the variation's insufficient to have any appreciable effect on earthly weather. Even granting that, Marvinists contend that it signifies next to nothing, because of numerous other elements that have to be taken into account.

Fluctuation in ocean temperatures is disputed similarly.

In short, the bureau treats the Brown theory as loath.

That means may yet be found to make long-range forecasts possible the bureau folk admit. They insist only—but they do insist on that emphatically—that no method has yet been discovered to warrant a prediction at a range of more than a few days.

Brown isn't a scientist. Nobody would take his word, as such, on a scientific question, against the word of the weather bureau experts, who are. He wouldn't ask it himself.

He got into the forecasting business accidentally. Originally, he was engaged in furnishing confidential reports to "big business," and found, in due course, that "big business" plans often depend on the weather—a good deal farther ahead than the bureau's forecasts go.

Unable to get what he wanted from the bureau, he turned to other sources. Some of them are as scientific as anybody could ask.

The Smithsonian Institution, for instance, testifies to solar heat variations; the navy hydrographic office to changing ocean temperatures; Prof. H. H. Clayton, recognized as perhaps the world's foremost meteorologist, to the practicability of long-range forecasts—all disputed by the weather bureau.

Brown's conclusions are more or less his own, but the authorities he bases them on are the best to be had.

By the way, he didn't predict a summerless year only that it would be cold; not necessarily summerless—and a "freak year," too. "And so it has been cold," adds Brown. "Not abnormally."

Insists the weather bureau, quoting statistics. "Aw, your figures are distorted," sneers Brown. Yes, he makes specifically that charge, in his letter to Secretary Jardine.

As for freakishness, demands the long distance forecaster, "How about the Mississippi floods?"

'Cop' for Cleveland's Golf Course Named

United Press

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 9.—A mounted "cop" who is paid to roam over a golf course and chase youngsters who hunt for so-called "lost" balls, is Cleveland's latest addition to its police force.

Safety Director Edwin Barry and Chief of Police Jacob Graul decided to put the mounted guard at the publicly owned Highland park golf links, following complaints from the park board that the course was being "ruined" and equipment stolen.

It will be one of the duties of the mounted policeman "to see that no golf balls are picked up without due premeditation," according to Graul.

The park board however has ordered that the policeman must keep his horse on the fairways and not let the animal trample over any of the course's beautiful greens.

If the plan proves successful, other "mounties" may be assigned to park links, and the entire squad may be called "Cleveland's Mounted Golf Rangers."

If you would outshine your neighbors acquire a good reputation and then keep it polished.

Elephant Hides for Dainty Women; Frog Skins Worn by Men

United Press

PARIS, Sept. 9.—Milady now uses elephant hide for raincoats, shoes, bags and grips. A method has been found permitting to make the rough hide supple. Various hues are employed, tans and grays predominating. One raincoat of elephant hide with buttons of ivory is selling fast.

But milady's husband has to be content with skins of frogs as a novelty. This material is light and waterproof. The husband can carry a wallet or a cigarette case made from frog skin or he can swing a cane covered with the same fabric.

Silk butterflyes are another fad which promises to be popular with American visitors. They are of sheer silk with the wings painted on. They can be fastened with a pin to a frock giving the impression of real butterflies which have just alighted. The wearing of a coat over the frock does not injure them. Several women have realized that the butterflyes can be used on their shoes as buckles or as hat trimmings.

To rest from this work and when he has covered a number of pages with his large, firm hand-writing, the marshal will again pick up his shears or his cane and start out on another tour of his park. When he is not trimming a hedge or the branches of a tree, he takes out his hunting knife and begins whittling canes as did the polis during the war.

From time to time in his Brittany home Foch receives some illustrious French or foreign visitor who has made a detour to call on the distinguished soldier. Last summer the marshal received the visit at Trefontaine of General Pershing before the latter boarded a ship for America.

When Foch was once asked how he passed his time at his Brittany home, he responded: "I play at strategy with my trees. For the marshal, trimming the branches of his ancient trees and planting other trees in selected spots, erects in this way a 'first line of defense' against the strong winds that blow in Brittany."

It is curious to compare the occupations of Marshal Foch at his country home with those of Clemenceau, who on his moor at Saint Vincent sur Jard in Vendee devotes his efforts to conquer the sea in reconstructing and consolidating the dikes about his property, which the waves have assailed during the winter.

Also it is curious that these two men, Clemenceau and Foch, who in different roles were victors of the great war, never visit each other and seem each to desire to forget that the other exists.

At the entrance of Foch's manor, one sees a little chapel. Here each morning and evening Foch, accompanied by his wife, his daughters and his seven grandchildren, goes to prayer. Some times he goes alone to the chapel to meditate.

Marshal Foch at the present time is pre-occupied with the coming convention of the American Legion in France. He interests himself personally in the details of the lodging in Paris of the 30,000 American veterans formerly under his command.

MARSHAL FOCH SPENDS TIME IN GARDEN

By A. L. BRADFORD

United Press Staff Correspondent

FOCH SERIES NO. 5.

(United Press)

PARIS, Sept. 9.—At his country home in Brittany, Marshal Foch spends most of his time trimming and whittling.

Almost on arriving, Foch takes his shears and starts to trim, everything which can be trimmed. When there is nothing more to be trimmed he goes back to the house.

Between times Foch spends long hours in his library writing, either on his own memoirs, or as was the case last summer, writing a preface for the memoirs of Marshal Wilson of England, who is an old friend of Foch.

To rest from this work and when he has covered a number of pages with his large, firm hand-writing, the marshal will again pick up his shears or his cane and start out on another tour of his park. When he is not trimming a hedge or the branches of a tree, he takes out his hunting knife and begins whittling canes as did the polis during the war.
